Coliseum Commission Expects '61 To Be Best 'Money' Year in History

The Coliseum Commission can look forward to 1961 as being its best financial year in history from the operation of the Coliseum, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn announced this week as the Coliseum Commission approved a new one-year contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Terms of the contract call for the Commission to receive 10 per cent of all gate admissions, plus the profits from the concessions.

"This means that the Commission will realize at least $700,000 from baseball alone. This, when the regular rental rate of 10 per cent to be paid by all tenants, including the Rams, USC, and UCLA means that the Commission can expect to have the most profitable year in its history," Supervisor Hahn declared.

ASSUME COST
In approving the contract, the Commission voted to assume the cost of restoring the track so that the Coliseum could be restored to one of its original purposes—track and field events.

Supervisor Hahn pointed out that he believes that the Commission's decision on that one point represented good business judgement, particularly in view of the fact that it was not allowing the Dodgers credit for a number of items that were allowed last year.

By agreeing to restore the track, the Commission can go ahead with plans for construction of the world's finest outdoor track, with assurance that it will not be removed, since the Dodgers will be playing in their own stadium in 1962.

OVER $25,000
Under the original two year contract which brought the Dodgers to the Coliseum in 1958, the Dodgers were to assume any cost above $25,000 in restoring the track, with the Commission to pay up to $25,000.

In 1958 and in 1959 the Dodgers got the use of the Coliseum at the "bargain basement" rental figure of $200,000 a year.

When the original contract expired, under Supervisor Hahn's leadership, with strong backing from County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy, it was determined that a new contract had to be negotiated.

10% COMMISSION
As a result, the Dodgers were required to pay the Commission 10 per cent of all gate receipts and to turn over all concession profits to the Commission. In return, the Commission agreed to credit the Dodgers with $61,925 in expenses involved in converting the Coliseum for baseball and to purchase $30,000 in improvements to the baseball club made to the Coliseum.

In view of the previous contracts, the Commission's decision to assume cost of restoring the track was a sound business decision and assisted in bringing about swift agreement on the contract, Supervisor Hahn said.
